My newest toy for using the SMART Board effectively. Have you ever sat in the back of your room and tried to see what is on the smart board? If you have, you know that it is pretty hard to see. This is a problem I have had a lot. But this tool is awesome although it takes a little bit to get used to using it. Basically, once you turn it on, you just move your mouse around and the magnifier follows your curser so it is pretty sweet once you get used to it.
Follow these simple instructions to turn it on and then pin it to your taskbar so it's easy to toggle on and off.
Sorry Mac users, maybe Bridget knows of something similar.

Go to the start Icon, and search magnifier

Move your curser towards the bottom of the screen until you see this icon, right click, and select
